

reggaeendz

BAND STORY

"

Reggaeendz online music store is a (Subsidiary of G Entertainment) as well as an affiliate of A-Town Records, Ja.

The goal of Reggaeendz online music store is to provide an outlet for artists to access the global market place and conversely to provide quality music products to a global audience.

Through our affiliation with A-Town Records, Ja and it various associates, Reggaeendz online music store is in a uniques position to meet both of it stated goals. Our desire is to present to the world the many new up & coming artists: vocalist, deejays, dub poets and instrumentalist, throughout Jamaica and the world. Our wbsite www.reggaeendz.com is but one of the tools being used to achieve this endz, no pun intended.

We look forward to the global support of reggae music lovers, as we move forward, in the proliferation of authentic reggae/dance hall music. So feel free to visit us on the endz, tell a friend. Let's grow together; continue to visit www.reggaemall.com/reggaeendz to listen and download the latest songs from A-Town Records' emerging young, talents.

GN

"

LATEST NEWS

Baby Cham Delivers Virtuoso Performance

STATS

Visits	Plays
1,531	736
Streams	Downloads
736	0

Featured Songs

-
'Til The End Of Time-Colin Roach Fea. Althea
Reggae
-
Hail Up King Selassie I-King Benj-i
Reggae

About 1:30AM, the MC began his introduction of the Sherlock Crescent, Jamaica artist... "Mr. Wowoh!" The female patrons, who were there in their numbers, pulled within inches of the stage, as Baby Cham hit the stage with his identifiable pronouncement, "Wowoh!" the venue went crazy. As far as the eyes could see there were cell phone lights and camera flash. Cham did not disappoint, the slim, energetic entertainer dance and deejay is way through a break free one hour set, while fending off overzealous female patrons who apparently wanted a souvenir, as they tug at his garment. Some patrons went as far as to stuffing dollar bill in the deejays blue jeans.

MORE>>> Visit www.reggaeendz.com for the entire article

Third World Reality Versus First World Privilege: Creating Criminals, Has American Lost Its Moral Imperative?

With Monday's start of Buju Banton aka Mark Myrie's trial in Tampa, Florida on charges of conspiracy to possess and distribute more than 5 kilo of cocaine, everyone that is not living underground, has an opinion.

The four times Grammy nominee is facing twenty-five years to life imprisonment and US $4 million fine, punishment that is usually reserved for murderers, life time criminals and for, even acts of treason. How does Buju Banton's, alleged, action or inaction, as he actually did not purchase the drugs, stack up to the aforementioned breaches?

As for me, I am conflicted. I too have admired the metamorphosis of Buju Banton, from a dance hall "Phnom" to a reggae music icon. Am I disappointed that he allowed himself to become engulfed in this crisis, the answer is yes. But, I also realize that Buju Banton is no different than most of us (not necessarily Jamaicans), so far as our human failings. Many is chirping about his greed; but how many of us given the opportunity to exploit a situation, if we are sure that we would not be caught? How moral would it be if a parent or any responsible adult were to place an appetizing sweet in front of a child for the sole purpose of tempting that child? Would the later be considered "entrapment"? We all harbour the desire to obtain certain things; but, I don't see where it is a government place to provide us, via deception with that which is detrimental to us or society- simply because we voice our desire to possess that which is taboo or illegal.

Though Buju is not a child, the actions of the authority figures and the US Government are not too dissimilar, both create an artificial environment to elicit a specific reaction or behavior that would not otherwise exist. It is almost like the incarcerating of individuals for thinking of committing a crime, without taking into consideration the fact that the act might not be carried out. Are we now living in a world of "Bushism"- Pre-emptive actions at all cost?

Human being, unlike all of God's other creations are rational creatures and confronted with the right stimuli will experience extensive emotional and psychological swings. But, more often than not, our behaviour tends to 'conform to the norm.' My point is, why would a government that professes to be "ALL" things that the rest of the world is not-equality, justice, colour blindness, i.e. initiate such a premeditated act such as the one that ensnared Buju Banton and countless others?

The irony of the trial of Buju Banton and his two accomplices' is that it is being played out against the backdrop of the US dispensation of "uneven justice." A disturbing truism that I term, "Third world" reality versus "First world" privilege, i.e. Paris Hilton's recent cocaine possession- one year probation; Lindsey Lohan's numerous drugs involvements- a few days in jail; and the recent arrest drugs involvement- a few days in jail, and the recent arrest of chart topping singer Bruno Mars for possession of cocaine- not yet adjudicated.

All said, I think that the American Government needs to revisit its pledge; " ...Justice and Liberty for All;" which I assumed included justice and fairness for the Mark Myrie(s) of the world...third or otherwise.

Editorial

Contributed

GN/ Reggaeendz.com Wednesday, September 22, 2010

For additional information please contact us
©2012 Reggaemall.com